this reader introduces students of philosophy and politics to the contemporary critical literature on the classical social contract theorists thomas hobbes 1599 1697 john locke 1632 1704 and jean jacques rousseau 1712 1778 twelve thoughtfully selected essays guide students through the texts familiarizing them with key elements of the theory while at the same time introducing them to current scholarly controversies a bibliography of additional work is provided the classical social contract theorists represent one of the two or three most important modern traditions in political thought their ideas dominated political debates in europe and north america in the 17th and 18th centuries influencing political thinkers statesmen constitution makers revolutionaries and other political actors alike debates during the french revolution and the early history of the american republic were often conducted in the language of hobbes locke and rousseau later political philosophy can only be understood against this backdrop and the contemporary revival of contractarian moral and political thought represented by john rawls a theory of justice 1971 or david gauthier's morals by agreement 1986 needs to be appreciated in the history of this tradition essay aus dem jahr 2016 im fachbereich politik grundlagen und allgemeines sprache deutsch abstract in this paper i am going to compare john locke's and thomas hobbes' different ideas about the social contract the social contract is a theory which should describe the relationship between a government and the individual already in antiquity epicure lucretius and cicero were writing about the theory of the social contract in the age of enlightenment there were again several people such as hobbes locke or rousseau writing about the social contract regarding these different theories i am going to tackle the following questions how do the social contract theories in leviathan and two treatise of government differ where are hobbes and locke s ideas realized in the present where were hobbes and locke s ideas realized in history i will work out some points in which these two theories differ and take a look where they are realized nowadays and where they were realized in history in addition i will provide a short biography for both hobbes and locke this biography is intended to give us a better understanding of the backgrounds of these two political philosophers in this study of the origins of liberalism in political thought andrzej rapaczynski examines the political theory of hobbes locke and rousseau convinced that the aristotelian and medieval world views no longer provided an adequate framework for the ordering of political life these three thinkers sought to reconstruct the philosophical foundations of politics essay from the year 2008 in the subject politics political theory and the history of ideas journal grade 80 good university of kerala department of political science course political theory liberal tradition language english abstract this essay compares the classical social contract theories of hobbes locke and rousseau different perceptions of the state of nature resulted in different ideas about the social contract and its emphasis on either security hobbes individual rights locke or the collective freedom of rousseau s general will political philosophy is believed to have started with plato s republic the first known sophisticated analysis of a fundamental question that humans have probably been concerned with much longer how should human society be organised i e who should rule and why plato believed that ruling required special training and skills and should therefore be left to an aristocracy of guardians who had received extensive training while the notion that ruling requires expertise can hardly be denied there is also agreement among most philosophers that whoever qualifies for the job of ruling needs to do so with the interest of the people in mind but what is the interest of the people and how can it be discovered according to plato a necessary precondition for rulers is wisdom and that is why he wanted his guardians to be especially trained in philosophy one may think that the people themselves should know what is best for them but somewhat surprisingly this idea has been rejected not just by plato but also by many philosophers following him another approach is to link rule on earth to a mandate received from a divine creator however even the idea that humans could not exist without a government has been questioned most notably by anarchism thus the question of how political rule the power to make decisions for others could be justified is an essential one only legitimate rule creates obligation and without o gateway to the social contract brings together a selection of writings from political theorists thomas hobbes john locke and jean jacques rousseau exploring questions of political legitimacy and authority with ideas ranging from authoritarian to anarchic these authors continue to offer compelling insights into contemporary problems the concept of power shapes both the political philosophy and the general worldview of the modern age for this reason two areas of philosophy ontology and political philosophy which were hitherto treated separately must be brought together freedom equality power brings out the ontological framework shared by the political philosophies of hobbes locke and rousseau in the last chapter the ontological consequences the author uses the results of his earlier analyses as the stepping stone for developing some themes belonging to ontology in general this is a guide to the vast amount of literature on the history of political thought which has appeared in english since 1945 the editors provide an annotation of the content of many entries and where appropriate indicate their significance controversial nature and readability the leviathan 1651 the two treatises of government 1689 the constitution of pennsylvania 1776 the original texts from hobbes locke and the founding fathers of the united states excerpt from the leviathan first when men register their thoughts wrong by the inconstancy of the signification of their words by which they register for their conceptions that which they never conceived and so deceive themselves secondly when they use words metaphorically that is in other sense than that they are ordained for and thereby deceive others thirdly when by words they declare that to be their will which is not fourthly when they use them to grieve one another for seeing nature hath armed living creatures some with teeth some with horns and some with hands to grieve an enemy it is but an abuse of speech to grieve him with the tongue unless it be one whom we are obliged to govern and then it is not to grieve but to correct and amend the manner how speech serveth to the remembrance of the consequence of causes and effects consisteth in the imposing of names and the connexion of them of names some are proper and singular to one only thing as peter john this man this tree and some are common to many things as man horse tree every of which though but one name is nevertheless the name of diverse particular things in respect of all which together it is called a universal there being nothing in the world universal but names for the things named are every one of them individual and singular one universal name is imposed on many things for their similitude in some quality or other accident and whereas a proper name bringeth to mind one thing only universals recall any one of those many and of names universal some are of more and some of less extent the larger comprehending the less large and some again of equal extent comprehending each other reciprocally as for example the name body is of larger signification than the word man and comprehendeth it and the names man and rational are of equal extent comprehending mutually one another but here we must take notice that by a name is not always understood as in grammar one only word but sometimes by circumlocution many words together for all these words he that in his actions observeth the laws of his country make but one name equivalent to this one word just by this imposition of names some of larger some of stricter signification we turn the reckoning of the consequences of things imagined in the mind into a reckoning of the consequences of appellations for example a man that hath no use of speech at all such as is born and remains perfectly deaf and dumb if he set before his eyes a triangle and by it two right angles such as are the corners of a square figure he may by meditation compare and find that the three angles of that triangle are equal to those two right angles that stand by it but if another triangle be shown him different in shape from the former he cannot know without a new labour whether the three angles of that also be equal to the same but he that hath the use of words when he observes that such equality was consequent not to the length of the sides nor to any other particular thing in his triangle but only to this that the sides were straight and the angles three and that that was all for which he named it a triangle will boldly conclude universally that such equality of angles is in all triangles whatsoever and register his invention in these general terms every triangle hath its three angles equal to two right angles and thus the consequence found in one particular comes to be registered and remembered as a universal rule and discharges our mental reckoning of time and place and delivers us from all labour of the mind saving the first and makes that which was seminar paper from the year 2012 in the subject philosophy practical ethics aesthetics culture nature right grade 13 nelson mandela metropolitan university language english abstract this paper discusses the basis of the theories of locke hobbes and rousseau the state of nature which is used by all three of them as a methodical entity to create their social contract theories i will first introduce each philosopher and the political context he lived in as well as the different states of nature on which the philosophers based their theories on i will then compare the states with each other and point out relations and dissimilarities in my conclusion i will come back to the hypothesis that the three different states have dissimilar intentions and aim towards different governmental systems thomas hobbes the royalist is above all famous for his social contact theory the appeal to the agreement that would be made among rational free and equal persons his conclusion that we should submit to the authority of an absolute and unlimited sovereign power may not have found many followers but his analysis remains unchallenged
