the oxford handbook of consumption examines the most pressing questions addressed by consumption studies scholars today the volume counteracts the tendency towards disciplinary myopia as it engages scholars from around the world drawing on sociology anthropology psychology history and consumption studies the volume s thirty one chapters are organized around six themes facilitating cross disciplinary exploration

the main objective of the book is to allocate the grass roots initiatives of remembering the holocaust victims in a particular region of russia which has a very diverse ethnic structure and little presence of jews at the same time it aims to find out how such individual initiatives correspond to the official russian hero orientated concept of remembering the second world war with almost no attention to the memory of war victims including holocaust victims north caucasus became the last address of thousands of soviet jews both evacuees and locals while there was almost no attention paid to the holocaust victims in the official soviet propaganda in the postwar period local activists and historians together with the members of jewish communities preserved holocaust memory by installing small obelisks at the killing sites writing novels and making documentaries teaching about the holocaust at schools and making small thematic exhibitions in the local and school museums individual types of grass roots activities in the region on remembering holocaust victims are analyzed in each chapter of the book a must read book that explores a vital pre war effort with deep research and gripping writing washington times in the rise of the g i army 1940 1941 paul dickson tells the dramatic story of how the american army was mobilized from scattered outposts two years before pearl harbor into the disciplined and mobile fighting force that helped win world war ii in september 1939 when nazi germany invaded poland and initiated world war ii america had strong isolationist leanings the us army stood at fewer than 200 000 men unprepared to defend the country much less carry the fight to europe and the far east and yet less than a year after pearl harbor the american army led the allied invasion of north africa beginning the campaign that would defeat germany and the navy and marines were fully engaged with japan in the pacific dickson chronicles this transformation from franklin roosevelt s selection of george c marshall to be army chief of staff to the remarkable peace time draft of 1940 and the massive and unprecedented mock battles in tennessee louisiana and the carolinas by which the skill and spirit of the army were forged and out of which iconic leaders like eisenhower bradley and clark emerged the narrative unfolds against a backdrop of political and cultural isolationist resistance and racial tension at home and the increasingly perceived threat of attack from both germany and japan scholars and students of american jewish history and literature in particular will appreciate this internationally focused scholarship on the continuing reverberations of the second world war and the holocaust legal decisions continue to mystify why was this person sentenced to 20 years in prison but that person to just 10 years for the same crime why did one person sue for civil damages but another let the matter drop legal rules are supposed to answer these questions but their answers are radically incomplete wouldn't it be wonderful to have a theory that predicted and explained legal decisions drawing on donald black's theoretical ideas geometrical justice the death penalty in america addresses these issues focusing specifically on who is sentenced to death and executed in the united states the book explains why some murders are more serious than others and how the social characteristics of defendants victims and jurors affect case outcomes building on the most rigorous data in the field the authors reveal wide discrepancies in capital punishment why one person lives but another person dies geometrical justice will be of interest to those engaged in criminal justice criminology and socio legal studies as well as students taking courses on sentencing corrections and capital punishment in drunk on genocide edward b westermann reveals how over the course of the third reich scenes involving alcohol consumption and revelry among the ss and police became a routine part of rituals of humiliation in the camps ghettos and killing fields of eastern europe westermann draws on a vast range of newly unearthed material to explore how alcohol consumption served as a literal and metaphorical lubricant for mass murder it facilitated performative masculinity expressly linked to physical or sexual violence such inebriated exhibitions extended from meetings of top nazi officials to the rank and file celebrating at the grave sites of their victims westermann argues that contrary to the common misconception of the ss and police as stone cold killers they were in fact intoxicated with the act of murder itself drunk on genocide highlights the intersections of masculinity drinking ritual sexual violence and mass murder to expose the role of alcohol and celebratory ritual in the nazi genocide of european jews its surprising and disturbing findings offer a new perspective on the mindset motivation and mentality of killers as they prepared for and participated in mass extermination published in association with the us holocaust memorial museum in the early fifteenth century two tibetan monks debated how to transform the body ritually into a celestial palace inhabited by buddhas the discussion between ngorchen kunga zangpo and khédrupjé gélek pelzangpo concerned the mechanics of this tantric ritual practice known as body mandala as well as the most reliable sources to follow in performing it as representatives of the sakya and emerging geluk traditions respectively these authors spoke for communities of buddhist practitioners vying for patronage and prestige in an evolving tibetan scholastic culture their debate witnessed clashes between imagination and deception continuity and rupture and tradition and innovation searching for the body demonstrates the significance of the body mandala debate for understandings of tibetan buddhism as well as conversations on representation and embodiment occurring across the disciplines today rae erin dachille explores how ngorchen and khédrup used citational practice as a tool for making meaning arguing that their texts reveal a deep connection between ritual mechanics and interpretive practice she contends that this debate addresses strikingly contemporary issues surrounding interpretation intertextuality creativity essentialism and naturalness buddhist ideas about the construction of meaning and the body offer new ways of understanding representation which dachille illuminates in an epilogue that considers glenn ligon s engagement with robert mapplethorpe s photography by placing buddhist thought in dialogue with contemporary artistic practice and cultural critique searching for the body offers vital new perspectives on the transformative potential of representations in defining and transcending the human
