this monograph reflects a culmination of influences over a decade ago a graduate student at the university of waterloo dr carl sordoni had worked with one of the present authors h l to develop a dissertation concerned with humor at that time the literature on humor was scanty there was much that had been written by philosophers and scholars in literature but in psychology especially empirical research in psychology there was not an overwhelming literature to give substance to the belief that humor was an important element in human affairs memories of that dissertation are fond the findings were disappointing but the execution of the research provided us with much hilarity though the dissertation research did not pan out as we had hoped we had begun to look for the influence of humor in other investigations that we were conducting two published studies from that era are described in this book one of which grew as an off shoot of a dissertation by dr paul antrobus in these studies not only did we find evidence that humor could be predicted and understood within particular contexts but again we found enjoyment in doing the studies
