165 to be exact the legendary performer delivered a concert in Carnegie Hall the live recording of which became upon release an unlikely pop cultural phenomenon Judy at Carnegie Hall the two disc set that captured all 25 numbers she performed that night went on to spend more than 70 weeks on the Billboard charts win four Grammy awards including album of the year making it the first live music album and the first album by a female performer to win the category and become in the process the fastest selling two disc set in history what the recording highlights and what's made it an enduring classic in a class of its own is the palpable connection between the songstress and her fans indeed the New York Times reported in its review of the evening's proceedings what actually was to have been a concert and was also turned into something not too remote from a revival meeting by looking at her song choices her stage banter the album's cultural impact and her place in the gay pantheon this book argues that Judy's palpable connection with her fans is precisely what her Capitol Records two disc album captured

Carol Thomas's seminal work on the contested relations of and between the sociologies of health, illness, and disability has resulted in a plethora of critical insights into disabled people's sense of socio-political identity. This includes a growing body of critically engaged scholarship that has demonstrated the significance of working across interdisciplinary frames and transnational geographies in addition to crippling research practices in studies of the everyday experiences of disabled people and community members who live with longstanding chronic illnesses and undiagnosed health conditions. This research has to date enriched the disability sociological imagination, generating new insights and potential alliances that are necessary to build, mobilize, and sustain crosscutting communities of wellbeing. This research topic aims to explore innovative methods in sociological research that distill shared and mutually constitutive practices of wellbeing for disabled people and community members that live across the continuum of disability health identities. Research that seeks to connect the lived experiences of uniquely marginalized people with wider patterns of local and global inequity and relations of exclusion offers opportunities to advance goals of disability justice and improve accessibility in research, work, healthcare, delivery, advocacy, and beyond. Centering disability in sociological methods has the potential to expose inequities and disrupt normative standards, systems, and practices by exploring the intersection of sociology, disability studies, and other schools of thought and activism. This research topic will provide new empirical and methodological insight into interdisciplinary scholarship and collaborative action. The research topic aims to contribute to decentering the global north in health and disability research and advocacy by incorporating insight from the global south. Scholars from the global south and research focused on transnational connections are encouraged. We invite empirical, analytic, or theoretical papers exploring emerging sociological methods and practices of engagement across diverse disability communities noting how communities of care are often transnational we encourage generous and generative understandings of disability and seek contributions from scholars and community based researchers in sociology disability studies political science science and technology studies anthropology mad studies deaf studies and other disciplines that are considering these connections this research topic welcomes critical and situated contributions from all geographies especially including disabled scholars scholars in the global south and transnational collaborations towards more equitable global knowledge production submissions on various themes are encouraged including interdisciplinary ruptures or points of convergence in methodologies related to disability health and illness crippling research methods and modes of analysis innovations in research accessibility reflections on a disability lens for sociological methods diverse disability identities and practices of community engagement technological advancements in research engagement and dissemination karen soldatic danielle landry and temba middelman are funded and supported by the canada excellence research chair in health equity and community wellbeing at toronto metropolitan university
